Chapter 1

What are Transits?

Transits are the real-time physical astrological influences arising from the connections made between the present placements by zodiacal sign and degree of the planets, luminaries and nodes at the time under consideration, and the placements of all the planets, luminaries, nodes, angles and houses in the birth chart for the individual or entity being studied.

At any one period of time, transits from each of the luminaries and planets, to at least one or another of the houses (ideally, two, since both ascendant and solar houses should be separately tracked) in the birth chart will be active; and from time to time each luminary and planet will form different transits by aspect to planets, luminaries and other individual points in the birth chart.

Since the planets, luminaries and nodes each move through the entire zodiac in a fairly regular period of time specific to the planet, luminary or node concerned, all transits are cyclical in nature; and the cycles of the luminaries, Moon's Nodes and planets from Mercury to Saturn are repeated in their entirety on multiple occasions in the average lifetime of a human being. The period of Uranus is about 84 years, so only those who live to this age or greater will experience its complete cycle of transits to the factors in their birth charts. The periods of Neptune and Pluto extend to approximately twice and three times (respectively) the average life span of a fortunate human being; and therefore each of us will only ever experience a certain portion of the full cycle of Neptune and Pluto transits to our birth charts.

The mean geocentric periods of the different luminaries and planets are approximately: Moon - 29.6 days; Sun, Mercury and Venus - 365.24 days (since Mercury and Venus are within the Earth's orbit they always appear to circuit the zodiac at the same average rate as the Sun); Mars - 686.98 days; Jupiter - 11.68 years; Saturn - 29.46 years; Uranus - 84.01 years; Neptune - 164.8 years; Pluto - 247.7 years. These periods divided by twelve give the average amount of time that each luminary or planet takes to transit each sign, and therefore on average (allowing for different house sizes) each natal house. However, because of eccentricities to their orbits and factors connected with the movement of the Earth relative to the Sun, the planets do not all move through each sign in the same amount of time. The apparent speed of motion of the Moon changes considerably; it takes sometimes as little as just over 48 hours to transit a sign; other times well over 60 hours. Pluto takes over twice as many years to transit some signs as it takes to transit ones on the opposite side of the zodiac, and has been in the fastest-moving part of its cycle in our lifetimes.

Transits to the planets, luminaries, nodes and angles operate by means of aspects, in exactly the same manner as aspects in the birth chart, except that they are transient (temporary) rather than radical (lifelong) influences.

However, whereas in natal astrology quite large allowances are made for the orbs of influence of the different types of aspects, where aspects by transit are under consideration the orbs allowed are very much smaller. Opinions vary as to the size of allowable orbs for transiting aspects, but their effects will be felt most strongly when they are exact to within just one degree, and are very unlikely to be felt at all outside a distance of three degrees. This applies right across the board for all the major aspect types. It is perhaps advisable to allow three degrees for conjunctions and oppositions; two degrees for squares and trines, and no more than one degree for sextiles, semisquares, sesquiquadrates, quincunxes, semisextiles, quintiles and biquintiles. All other type of aspects are best disregarded as immaterial.

While a luminary or planet is aspecting by transit a celestial body, angle or node in the birth chart, the transit will be experienced as the transiting body exerts a temporary influence, corresponding to its general nature and the type of aspect formed, upon the features of the personality, body and psychology governed by the aspected point in the birth chart. Whatever the nature of the influence, it will adjust the condition of the aspected point in the birth chart while it lasts, and may variously offset, clash with, harmonise with or accentuate the effects of the natal aspects and sign and house position of this point.

Transits by the planets from Mercury to Pluto are more complex events than the straight direct passes through the zodiac evidenced by the Sun and Moon, involving repeated periods of slower retrograde motion in the reverse direction through the signs and degrees of the zodiac, interspersed with the more rapid direct motion in the normal direction through the zodiac. Whenever one of these planets ceases to move in direct motion and turns retrograde, it appears to come to a halt, and is said to station retrograde. When it ceases to move in retrograde motion, it comes to a halt again, and is said to station direct. When a planet is close to one of its stations, it moves very slowly, and any aspect it forms by transit to a point in the birth chart will last much longer than it does on average. When a planet stations within aspecting orb (especially within one degree) of a point in the birth chart, the effect of the aspect by transit will be not only much longer-lasting but also more strongly and keenly felt than a regular passing-by transiting aspect of the same type between the same bodies.

When transiting planets turn retrograde, they very commonly form in retrograde motion the same transiting aspect they recently made in direct motion to a particular point in the birth chart. At this point, the same issues highlighted in the life of the individual affected during the first direct motion pass will be brought into focus again, but usually with a sense that there is more still to be done to resolve them. Then when the transiting planet involved turns direct once more and forms the same aspect in direct motion for a second and final time, the issues concerned will meet with their final outcome as affected by the transit that has been ongoing. Occasionally the outer planets such as Neptune and Pluto then turn retrograde again and move far enough back through the degrees of the zodiac to form the same aspect by transit in retrograde motion for a second time. When this happens, it will be experienced as a further recurrence of the issues highlighted by the particular transit concerned being brought into focus in a manner suggestive of slight backtracking or a lack of complete resolution. And then on the third direct pass of the transit the issues or activities will finally be definitively resolved as far as they are going to be by the transit that has been in progress.

Transits to the houses exactly resemble natal chart placements of planets and luminaries in the houses. When a real-time planet or luminary occupies a zodiacal sign and degree placement that falls within the area of the zodiac spanned by a particular house in the birth chart, then the transit of that planet or luminary to that house is effective. Within three degrees of the cusp of the next house, the planet or luminary concerned will exhibit some influence in the next house.

While a luminary or planet is transiting a particular house, the transit will be experienced as per the principles governed by the particular transiting luminary or planet exerting a temporary influence upon the area of life corresponding to the transited house. Whatever the nature of the influence, it will adjust the condition of the transited house in the birth chart while it lasts; and its impact should be considered in the context of how the principles governed by the transiting body as expressed through the transited house sit with those governed by any natal planets in the house, as well as in the context of conjunctions it forms to them and aspects it forms to planets in other natal houses during its passage through the house.

What is a transit? Transit means the passage of a heavenly body a planet through the zodiac. We prepare the birth chart on the basis of time, that is, the date and year of birth. To judge the transits, we need an Ephemeris for the year for which the good or bad effects by transits are to be judged.

The transit system consists of appraising the positions of the nine planets at a particular time for which the good or bad effects are to be ascertained together with the planetary position and the rising sign in the birth chart.

One of the basic theories of Hindu astrology is that all influences of planets fructify through the Moon, i.e., the Moon being the heavenly body nearest the earth, the influences filter through the Moon. Besides, all happiness and unhappiness is experienced by the mind or the heart.

In Western astrology transits of planets are judged vis-a-vis the radical longitudes of the planets and the ascending degree; but in Hindu astrology the popular and the most widely practiced method is to judge the transits from the natal Moon. The sign in which the Moon is at birth is popularly called the Rashi of the native. Rashi literally means a cluster or a heap. But since the signs in Hindu astrology are identified with constellations (which contain a heap or cluster of stars, forming a particular geometric pattern); the word Rashi has, by extended meaning, come to mean a sign and when only the Rashi of a particular native is referred to, it means the Moon-Sign.

For purposes of judging the transit influences so much importance is given to the Janma-Rashi, that if the date or time of birth of the native is not known and his birth chart cannot be erected and the position of the Moon cannot be ascertained, it is fixed according to the initial syllable of the name of the individual. It is an accepted principle of Hindu astrology that the first syllable of a person's name vibrates with certain influences and these correspond to certain positions of the Moon in particular signs. We give below a table showing the correspondence between the initial syllable of the name and the particular Moon sign.

Aries	Chu, (choo), che (e as in they) cho (as in chosen) la, a (as in woman or father) li, le, lu, loo, la (a as in late) lo.

Transit of Sun:

The effect of the Sun's transit through each of the houses as counted from the Moon-sign at birth is as follows:

1. Loss of house or position, travelling;
2. Loss, fear;
3. Gain of money, happiness;
4. Fear of ailments, loss of respect;
5. Humility, poverty, loss of money, expenditure;
6. Happiness, annihilation of enemies;
7. Travelling, loss of money;
8. Sickness, fear;
9. Loss of lustre, inclination to indulge in evil acts;
10. Success in undertaking happiness;
11. Gain of money, happiness;
12. Loss of money, apprehension of sickness or trouble.

Sun transit in 3rd, 6th, 10th and 11th sign w.r.t. (i.e. with respect to) Moon is auspicious but its Transit in 5th from Moon is very bad.

Transit of Moon:

The Moon completes one cycle of the zodiac in about 27 days. He is in one sign, for about two days and a quarter. Suppose the Moon at birth is in Scorpio; then the Moon by transit in Scorpio will be in the first house; the Moon by transit in Sagittarius in the second house, and so on. The effects of the transiting Moon as counted from the Janma-Rashi (sign occupied by Moon at birth) will be as follows:

1. Good health, increase, gain;
2. Ordinary gain of money;
3. Good income, happiness;
4. Sickness, loss of money, loss of respect;
5. Happiness but lack of success;
6. Gain of money;
7. Happiness, good income;
8. Fear of trouble, an bad time;

9. Respect, fear from the government;
10. Auspicious time, happiness;
11. Gain from various sources;
12. Sickness, loss of money, heavy expenditure.

Thus it will be observed that the transiting Moon is auspicious in the first, third, sixth, seventh, tenth and eleventh houses as counted from the radical Moon. But Moon transit in 8th house gives very bad results and its transit in 9th and 12th House is also not good.

Transit of Mars:

Mars bestows good effects when he transits the third, sixth or the eleventh house as counted from the Janma-Rashi. The effects of Mars, by transit through various houses as counted from the radical Moon are as follows:-

1. Fear, trouble-physical or mental;
2. Eye troubles; loss of money;
3. Happiness, gain of wealth;
4. Trouble, fear from enemies;
5. Apprehension of sickness, loss of money;
6. Happiness, gain of wealth;
7. Poor health, heavy expenditure or loss of money;
8. Fear, inclination to indulge in sinful acts;
9. Apprehension of ill-health;
10. Happiness, also distress;
11. Gain of money and happiness;
12. Sickness, distress.

Mars gives maximum bad results only in 7th place w.r.t. natal Moon.

Transit of Mercury:

The effects of Mercury during transit, as counted from the radical Moon are as follows:

1. Fear of being confined;
2. Gain of money;
3. Fear from opponents or enemies;

4. Gain of money and happiness;
5. Sickness, distress;
6. No gain, status quo;
7. Apprehension of trouble, quarrels;
8. Gain of money and commodities;
9. Apprehension or ill-health, loss of money;
10. Happiness, good enjoyment;
11. Good time, gain of money;
12. Sorrow, loss of money, heavy expenditure.

Mercury gives auspicious result in its transit on 2, 4, 6, 8, 10, 11th place w.r.t. natal Moon and very bad result is experienced in 2nd house w.r.t. Moon.

Transit of Jupiter:

Jupiter stays in one sign for about a year. Jupiter is a heavy planet and while the transits of Mercury, Venus or the Sun, being about a month in each sign, are fleeting, Jupiter's stays for a long period in each sign and this entitled him to greater importance and weightage. When Jupiter during his transit aspects any planet, he excites the good influences of that planet which he aspects from his transiting position. For example suppose the natives ascendant is Scorpio and the Sun is the lord of the tenth house in Pisces. Then when Jupiter transits Cancer or Scorpio, he will be fully aspecting the radical Sun; or when Jupiter actually transits Pisces he will pass over the radical Sun and excite the solar influences and the native would benefit in respect of all matters governed by the Sun, i.e., the tenth house affairs, because the Sun in our example is the lord of the tenth house and all matters for which the Sun is a Karaka. So judge Jupiter's transit in relation to other planets also.

The effects of Jupiter's transit through the various houses as counted from the Janma-Rashi will be as follows:

1. Fear of unfavourable circumstances. In Western astrology Jupiter by transit over the radical Moon is considered good. Not so in Hindu astrology;
2. Gain of money and commodities;
3. Fear, sickness;
4. Loss of money, fear;

5. Gain, happiness;
6. Sickness, distress
7. Respect, happiness;
8. Adversity, troubles, both physical and mental;
9. Happiness, enhanced prestige, respect from others;
10. Humility, i.e., loss of respect;
11. Happiness, gain of money;
12. Sickness, fear.

Jupiter gives auspicious result in 2, 5, 7, 9, 11th places w.r.t. to natal Moon and maximum bad result is experienced in 3rd w.r.t. Moon.

Transit of Venus:

When Venus by transit occupies various houses as counted from the Moon-Sign of birth, the effects are as follows:

1. Happiness, annihilation of enemies;
2. Gain of money;
3. Happiness, gain of wealth;
4. Gain of money and comforts;
5. Gain, happiness in respect of child or children;
6. Trouble, increase in the number of enemies or adverse effects caused by opponents;
7. Distress, great apprehension, adversity, loss of money;
8. Gain of money;
9. Happiness, gain
10. Loss of religious merit-the native may indulge in irreligious acts, want of happiness;
11. Mental distress but gain of money;
12. Increase in wealth.

Venus gives auspicious results in 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 8, 9, 11, 12th houses w.r.t. natal Moon and very bad result is experienced in 6th House w.r.t. Moon.

Transit of Saturn:

The transit of Saturn is generally unfavourable in respect of the house (from the radical ascendant) he transits unless he be transiting his own house or unless he be the lord of the ascendant. (i.e., unless Capricorn or Aquarius is the rising sign), then he does not damage the affairs of the house he transits. For example, if Scorpio is the ascendant and Saturn by transit is in the first house, he will be inclined to cause ill-health. When he transits Sagittarius he will have a tendency to adversely affect finances. In Capricorn, he will not, during his transit, damage the third house because Capricorn is his own sign. Similarly when he transits the fourth house Aquarius is his own sign. When he transits Pisces, the fifth house, he will spoil the fifth house affairs of the native. The native may have stomach troubles due to sluggish digestion or formation of gases (traits of Saturnine diseases), or the native's children may suffer in health or career, and so on.

Saturn also has a depressing influence on the radical planet whom during the course of his transit he aspects. For example, suppose Scorpio is the ascendant and the Sun, the lord of the tenth, is in Pisces. Now when Saturn during his transit, stays in Gemini, he will be fully aspecting the radical Sun (the Sun occupying Pisces in the birth chart), with the result that affairs pertaining to the Sun may suffer or have a setback. The Sun is the lord of the tenth house, so the native's career may have a setback or advancement may be thwarted. Saturn is the planet of death and delay and so he spoils matters by prolonging issues or keeping them pending and by procrastination. He also causes harm from low people, aged persons, labour, servants, enemies and opponents. In the above example, the Sun is the lord of the tenth and we have explained how his transit would adversely effect the native's career. But the Sun is also Karaka for health, vigour, personal push, respect, father, government, persons in authority and so, Saturn during his transit through Gemini will also spoil or damage one or more affairs over which the Sun presides. In this way Saturn by transit spoils the affairs pertaining to the planet he aspects. But if he be the lord of the ascendant, he will not do so, or if he does any harm it will not be in such great measure.

Now we shall revert to our original line of delineating the effects of planets: The effects, of Saturn in the twelve houses as counted from the Moon-sign are:

1. Great distress and destruction;
2. Sorrow, loss of wealth;
3. Happiness, gain of money;

4. Apprehension of trouble, physical and mental ailments, fear;
5. Loss of wealth, distress to sons or children;
6. Happiness, gain of money;
7. Infirmities, physical sickness or mental ailments;
8. Increase of enemies or added onslaught by enemies, illness or distress;
9. Indulgence in sinful actions, loss of wealth, retarded income;
10. Increase of enmity;
11. Gain of money, happiness
12. Trouble all round, upsetting of status quo - a very unfavourable time.

Saturn gives auspicious results in 3, 6, 11th House w.r.t. Natal Moon and very bad result in 1st house w.r.t. Moon.

Saturn stays for two and a half years in one sign; so his transits are very important. When Saturn transits the twelfth, the first and the second house as counted from the radical Moon the period comes to seven and a half years (two and a half years in each of the three signs) and the combined period of seven and half years is generally referred to in India as the Sade Saati (the phrase literally means seven and a half years). This is generally considered a period during which the native does not have peace of mind, one thing after another crops up to keep the native worried. Few indeed are lucky who do not have a death in the family during these seven and a half years.

Here again persons in whose nativity the Moon is in Taurus (because Saturn would be the lord of the ninth and the tenth, both good houses from the Moon sign) or Libra (because Saturn would be the lord of the fourth and the fifth, both good houses as counted from the radical Moon) or Capricorn or Aquarius (because Saturn would be the lord of the Moon Sign radically) do not fare so badly as natives in whose nativities Saturn is the lord of an evil house as counted from the natal Moon.

Transit of Rahu:

The effect of Rahu's transit through the twelve house as counted from the Janma-Rashi is as follows:

1. Loss, trouble both physical or mental;
2. Loss of wealth, heavy expenditure;
3. Good health, gain of money;

4. Enmity, sorrow;
5. Loss, sorrow;
6. Happiness, gain of wealth;
7. Loss quarrels;
8. Illness, fear;
9. Inclination to indulge in sinful acts;
10. Enmity, happiness;
11. Happiness, gain of money;
12. Loss, illness.

Rahu gives auspicious results in 3, 6, 11th place w.r.t. Natal Moon and very bad result is experienced in 9th House w.r.t. Moon.

Transit of Ketu:

The effect of Ketu's transit through the twelve houses as counted from the radical Moon are as follows:

1. Loss, ill-health or disease;
2. Loss of money;
3. Happiness, gain, increase,
4. Fear, trouble both physical or mental;
5. Sorrow, loss of money;
6. Happiness, gain of money;
7. Evil state of affairs, illness;
8. Loss, threatened trouble;
9. Sinful actions, humility;
10. Fear, sorrow;
11. Good name and fame, gain of money;
12. Physical ill-health or mental distress, enmity.

Same as Rahu-effects.

Steps in Transit Analysis

Transits are determined by comparing the positions of the planets in the heavens on a given date to those of the natal horoscope.

The transits that have the most dramatic and marked influences are those which reinforce natal aspects and involve the same planets. For example, a natal square between Mars and Mercury indicates a tendency toward irritability and mental vehemence; thus, whenever transiting Mars or Mercury makes a square, conjunction, or opposition to natal Mars or Mercury, the individual experiences unusual irritation and mental annoyance. This is because transiting Mercury or Mars is reinforcing a natal stress aspect involving these two planets.

The meaning of a transit depends upon the position of the transiting planet in relation to the natal horoscope, the aspects it makes to the natal planets, and its position in the natal houses.

To interpret a transit, first look to the sign and house position the planet is transiting. These indicate the practical affairs of life to be directly activated by the transiting planet. The natal houses ruled by the transiting planet should also be considered, as well as the house or houses of which the planet is the exalted ruler.

Next, consider the aspects made by the transiting planet to any natal planet during its transit through a house. The affairs ruled by the natal planet receiving the transit will influence the affairs of that house.

The type of aspect being made, the sign and houses ruled by the transiting planet, and the natal planet that is being aspected, along with the signs and houses the natal planet rules, must be considered in determining the effects of a transit.

The exalted rulerships of the transiting and natal planets and the houses holding the signs of these exalted rulerships must also be considered. Exalted rulerships indicate where the power behind an event or action signified by the transit originates or is generated. For example, if Venus is transiting the natal Fifth House, the individual will experience pleasurable social, romantic, and esthetic activities. To determine the source of these romantic or social stimulations, look to the houses where Taurus, Libra and Pisces are found in the natal horoscope. (Venus rules Taurus and Libra and is exalted in Pisces).

Furthermore, if Venus is making a trine aspect to natal Mars while transiting the natal Fifth House, consider the sign and house position of natal Mars and the houses where Aries, Scorpio, and Capricorn are placed, for Mars rules Aries and Scorpio and is exalted in Capricorn.

Thus, the following factors all require consideration in this single example of transiting Venus in the natal Fifth House, trine natal Mars.

ABOUT THE AUTHOR

The author, Dr. Shanker Adawal, is a management professional. He is presently working for one of the Fortune 500 Indian companies at a senior position. Did his MBA and PhD, and worked with Multinationals in India and abroad, before joining his present assignment. He has travelled extensively both in India and abroad. He also has keen interest in Human Rights.

He got interested in astrology when he was young, did his Jyotishacharya, and has been doing his research in this field for over three decades. His desire and aspiration to share the findings of his research and the new dimensions which can be given to the science of astrology, prompted him to attempt to put the details in the form of a book so that the readers can take advantage of the same.

The study of any horoscope is accurate if the Planets and Dasha at the time of birth is studied in conjunction with the TRANSIT OF PLANETS at the time of studying it. Transits of the outer and inner planets are important in confirming and predicting the trend depicted in a horoscope. In this book I have in a simple way tried to explain the impact of transiting planets. This will serve as a reference for those who have understood the basics of predictive astrology. Transits have also to be understood in relation to the planet and the house in the natal chart, this has also been dealt with. The book will be a useful guide and help in sharpening predictive techniques for both beginners and amateurs.

This is the eighth book of the author, the first being Bhrigu Samhita: Predictive Techniques Deciphered, second, Know about Jupiter & Saturn, third, Know about Mars & Mercury, fourth, Your Profession: Ups & Downs with Remedial Measures, fifth, Relationship: Marriage, Love & Sex, sixth, Know about Luminaries: The Sun & The Moon, and the seventh being, Know about Astrology: Complete Guide to Self Learning Course in Astrology.
